Terms and conditions

1. Upon the payment of the Fee, which is a prerequisite for this agreement to take effect, Ale University Press commits to preparing and publishing the Article in the Journal. The Article will be made available to all readers on an open access basis at no cost, regardless of their subscription status to the Journal, in accordance with the terms of a Creative Commons Licence. CC-BY: Creative Commons Attribution Licence 4.0 [<https://creativecommons.org/licenses/by/4.0>] This licence allows others to reuse, reproduce, redistribute, and/or build upon your work, including for commercial purposes, as long as they credit you as the author and reference the original publication in the journal.
2. The Editor of the Journal and Ale University Press have the authority to implement any editorial modifications deemed necessary to prepare the Article for publication. Every attempt will be made to engage with the Author if significant changes are needed.
3. The copyright of the Article will continue to be held by the Author. The CC BY license indicates that the Author grants permission to Ale University Press to publish the Article in both print and electronic formats, as well as to sub-license the reprinting, republishing, and distribution of the Article as deemed suitable by Ale University Press and any other associated entity in the interest of the Journal, ensuring that appropriate credit is consistently attributed to the Author.
4. The Author guarantees that the Article is their original creation, has not been previously published, and is not presently being considered for publication elsewhere; furthermore, the Article does not contain any defamatory or illegal statements, does not infringe upon the rights of any third parties, and the Author, as the copyright holder, has the right to make this assignment.
5. In cases where the Article has been collaboratively created by multiple authors, the Author guarantees that they have received authorization from all co-authors to enter into this agreement on their behalf.
